Frontiers in Health Policy Research Alan M. Garber, 1998 This is the first volume of a new annual series that will present policy relevant economic research on health care and health policy issues The emphasis will be on less technical papers written primarily for a policy audience Each volume will contain approximately five papers from an annual conference to be held in spring in Washington D C Topics to be covered include the implications of health care policy provisions health care organization and management health outcomes health care output and productivity health related behavior health and aging and health and children Contributors Laurence Baker Ernst Berndt David Cutler Alan M Garber Thomas Macurdy Mark McClellan Louise Sheiner Richard Zeckhauser Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 1996-10 Medical and Health Care Books and Serials in Print, 1997 Understanding Healthcare Financial Management Louis C. Gapenski, 2001 Working Paper Series, 1997 Cumulated Index Medicus, 1981 Books in Print Supplement, 2002 Is Price Inflation Different for the Elderly? Ernst R. Berndt, 1997 Using annual IMS data from 1990 to 1996 we examine empirically whether whether elderly nonelderly price inflation differentials exist for one medical item namely prescription pharmaceuticals We assess prices for Rx for Rx drugs destined for ultimate use by the elderly vs the nonelderly at three points in the distribution chain initial sales from manufacturers intermediate purchases by retail pharmacies and final sales from retail pharmacies to patients payors We find that at the initial point in the distribution chain there are no differences in price inflation for the aggregate of drugs destined for use by the elderly vs the nonelderly At the intermediate sell in to pharmacy distribution point we examine antibiotics ABs antidepressants ADs and calcium channel blockers CCBs For ABs since 1992 elderly price inflation is somewhat greater than for the young reflecting in part the elderly's more intensive use of newer branded products having fewer side effects adverse drug interactions and more convenient dosing attributes of particular importance to the elderly For ADs elderly price inflation is considerably less than for the young due in large part to the elderly's greater use of older generic products For CCBs elderly/nonelderly differentials are negligible None of these differentials adjusts for variations in quality At the final retail sell out point we only examine ADs We find that since retailers obtain larger gross margins on generic than on branded products and because the elderly are disproportionately large users of generic ADs the elderly/nonelderly price inflation differential benefiting the elderly at the intermediate point is reduced considerably at final sale
