

SE Lesson Plan

Teacher(s):
Date:
Subject / grade level: 5th grade Science
Materials: projector and screen, homework rubric + writing assignment for Timmy, food chain/web PPT, extra reading for Timmy, guide for next concept for Timmy
State Standards: LS2-5-3. Construct an argument with evidence that in a particular habitat some organisms can survive well, some survive less well, and some cannot survive at all.
Lesson objective(s): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Students will be able to argue that if a bottom organism is removed from a particular habitat, then the higher level organisms will not survive.</li> <li>Students will be able to construct a food chain and food web for a particular habitat and demonstrate how each organism has a set of characteristics that helps them survive better in the area.</li> </ul>
Differentiation/Accommodation strategies to meet diverse learner needs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Timmy is in the Gifted and Talented Program and has shown to be gifted in science. He shows great understanding of the concepts put in front of him and gets bored if not challenged.</li> </ul> ACCOMMODATIONS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Timmy has already learned the basics of the concept, so to deepen his thinking, while other students are learning how to build a food chain and a food web, Timmy will do a short 1-2 page research paper on what will happen if a primary consumer is removed from an ecosystem. In the paper, he will need to explain the parts of a food chain and web, the differences between the two, and he needs to use scientific vocabulary.</li> <li>Timmy is also ahead in reading compared to his peers and is a visual learner, making reading about a concept easier to understand than him hearing it. To deepen understanding of concept and support reading comprehension of scientific papers, he will be given a short passage and corresponding worksheet that will solidify his understanding. The passage will be at the 6th or 7th grade level to challenge his thinking.</li> <li>If Timmy has shown advanced understanding (4) of the concept, I will give him the resources he needs to move onto the next concept. He will have access to work in the hallway to have fewer distractions and I will dedicate time during independent work time to check in on Timmy and answer any questions he has.</li> </ul>
ENGAGEMENT <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Students will be coming in from recess so for the first five minutes, I have the students put their head down on the desk with the lights off to get them back into classroom mode from recess mode. This has helped the transition go much smoother and the students are better prepared to learn after a reset.</li> <li>After those five minutes, students will get their science notebooks out from their desk.</li> <li>"yesterday we were introduced to food webs and food chains.... Today, we will create our own using the sagebrush steppe as our ecosystem. We will do this one together and then for homework, you will create your own using an ecosystem of your choice."</li> </ul>
EXPLORATION <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Have students talk with neighbor about what organisms they think are found in the sagebrush steppe. Expected answers: deer, hawks, rabbits, grasses</li> <li>Discuss different ecosystems nearby – forests, deserts, grasslands/plains – they can use any of these for their homework assignment</li> </ul>

Dumbing Down America James R. Delisle, 2021-09-03 At a time when the U.S. education system consistently lags behind its international peers, Dumbing Down America shows exactly why America can't keep up by providing a critical look at the nation's schools through the eyes of the children whose minds are languishing in countless classrooms. Filled with specific examples of how gifted children are being shortchanged by a nation that believes smart kids will succeed on their own, Dumbing Down America packs a powerful message: If we want our nation to prosper, we must pay attention to its most intelligent youth. With more than 35 years of experience working with and for gifted children, author James R. Delisle provides a template of what can and must happen in America's schools if they are to fulfill their mission of educating every child to the fullest potential. Dumbing Down America is a must-read for any individual who believes that the unfulfilled promises to gifted children must begin to be met in America's schools today, not someday.
