Dying To Kill A Christian Perspective On Euthanasia And Assisted Suicide:

DYING TO KILL Kieran Beville, 2014-11-26 This is a comprehensive study of euthanasia and assisted suicide. It traces the historical debate, examines the legal status of such activity in different countries, and explores the political, medical, and moral matters surrounding these emotive and controversial subjects in various cultural contexts. The key advocates and pioneers of this agenda-driven movement, such as the late Jack Kevorkian (popularly known as Dr Death) and Philip Nitschke (founder of Exit International), are profiled. Not only are the elderly and disabled becoming increasingly vulnerable, but children, psychiatric patients, the depressed, and those who are simply tired of life are now on a slippery slope into a dystopian nightmare. The spotlight is brought to bear on the Netherlands, in particular, where palliative care and the hospice movement are greatly underdeveloped as a result of legalization. These dubious services are now offered as part of normal medical care in Holland, where it is deemed more cost-effective to be given a lethal injection. The vital role of physicians as healers in society must be preserved, and the important but neglected spiritual dimension of death must be explored. Thus, a biblical view of human life is presented. Death and bereavement are universal phenomena, and people of all faiths and those of none have a legitimate right to comment. However, the historic Christian tradition is struggling to be heard in the clamor for personal autonomy and civil liberties in a multi-cultural society that is becoming increasingly secular. This work provides an ethical framework in which euthanasia and assisted suicide can be evaluated. These issues are on the radar, indicating a collision course with Christian values. It is time for Christians to be alert and to present the case that these are not satisfactory solutions to legitimate end-of-life concerns. Dying to Kill Keiren Beville, 2014 Euthanasia and Assisted

Suicide Michael J. Cholbi, 2017-01-26 This book addresses key historical, scientific, legal, and philosophical issues surrounding euthanasia and assisted suicide in the United States as well as in other countries and cultures. Euthanasia was practiced by Greek physicians as early as 500 BC. In the 20th century, legal and ethical controversies surrounding assisted dying exploded. Many religions and medical organizations led the way in opposition, citing the incompatibility of assisted dying with various religious traditions and with the obligations of medical personnel toward their patients. Today, these practices remain highly controversial both in the United States and around the world. Comprising contributions from an international group of experts, this book thoroughly investigates euthanasia and assisted suicide from an interdisciplinary and global perspective. It presents the ethical arguments for and against assisted dying, highlights how assisted dying is perceived in various cultural and philosophical traditions (for example, South and East Asian cultures, Latin American perspectives, and religions including Islam and Christianity), and considers how assisted dying has both shaped and been shaped by the emergence of professionalized bioethics. Readers will also learn about the most controversial issues related to assisted dying, such as pediatric euthanasia, assisted dying for organ transplantation, and suicide tourism, and examine concerns relating to assisted dying for racial minorities, children, and the disabled. Is there a Christian Case for Assisted Dying Paul Badham,2009-01-23 Issues surrounding euthanasia and assisted dying continue to hit the headlines with strong feelings on both sides In Is There a Christian Case for Assisted Dying Paul Badham makes a significant and controversial contribution to this important and current debate      The Right to Die Howard Ball,2017-01-26 This book provides a comprehensive and contemporary examination of the right to die issues facing society now that vast improvements in public health care and medicine have resulted in people not only living longer but taking much longer to die often in great pain and suffering In 1900 the average age at which people died in America was 47 years of age the primary causes of death were tuberculosis and other respiratory illnesses In the 21st century as a result of better health care and working conditions as well as advances in medical technology we live much longer as of 2016 about 80 years A much larger proportion of Americans now die from chronic diseases that generally appear at an advanced age such as heart disease cancer or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease COPD Should this fundamental change in human lifespan alter how society and government view right to die legislation What are the pros and cons of giving a mentally competent person who is terminally ill and in great pain the right to end his or her life The Right to Die A Reference Handbook provides a complete examination of right to die issues in the United States that dissects the complex arguments for and against a person's liberty to receive a physician's assistance to hasten death It covers the legal aspects and the politics of the right to die controversy analyzes the battles over the right to die in state and federal courts and supplies primary source documents that illustrate the political medical legal religious and ethical landscape of the right to die Additionally the book examines how members of our society typically die has changed in the past 150 years and how the practice of medicine has evolved over that time explains why the right to die is strongly opposed by many religious groups as well as members of the medical profession considers the slippery slope argument against doctor assisted suicide and identifies the reasons that the disabled the poor the elderly and infirm and some members of ethnic racial and religious minority groups typically fear physician assisted death      Assisted Suicide and Euthanasia Episcopal Church. Diocese of Washington. Committee on Medical Ethics,1997 For against and in between this book looks at the full range of arguments on assisted suicide and euthanasia that can be given from within the Christian tradition with a special focus on Anglican heritage      Christianity John Bowden,2005 If you know absolutely nothing about Christianity let John Bowden and his team of international scholars be your guide If you know a great deal but need an authoritative reference book Christianity The Guide is your ideal source      Right To Die? John Wyatt,2015-11-10 The case for assisted suicide can seem so compelling Surely it can't be wrong to help desperate people to kill themselves Don't we have a right to take our own lives in certain circumstances There are no trite or easy answers John Wyatt helps us to navigate the arguments with hearts and heads engaged and above all with our Bibles open There are practical and compassionate alternatives to assisted suicide and as many who have gone before us have found the end of our lives on this earth may turn out to be a strange and wonderful opportunity for growth and internal healing      Must We Suffer Our Way to Death? Ronald P.

Hamel, Edwin R. DuBose, 1996 The first contemporary study of assisted death to integrate insights from ethics theology philosophy medicine law and sociology this book provides a broad framework within which to weigh arguments for and against the practices of assisted suicide and euthanasia as public policy in the United States This collection of essays balances analysis of the cultural factors driving an increased interest in assisted death in Part One with intense personal responses from mainline Judeo Christian theologians in Part Two The multidisciplinary authors in Part One wrestle with the legitimate ends and limits of medicine and the appropriate role of law philosophy and theology in forming public policy in a pluralistic society In response the theologians in Part Two struggle to find a balance among the religious values of justice mercy freedom and responsibility in the lives of people confronted by terminal illness or intractable pain and suffering

Aiming to Kill Nigel Biggar, 2004 Controversy about the morality of euthanasia and assisted suicide and their legalisation has been running for over a generation and it shows no sign of flagging The main arguments for and against are widely familiar yet the horizon yields no sign of any approaching resolution Progress can still be made by careful examination of the opposing fronts and that is the service that this book performs Drawing ecumenically on both theological and philosophical resources it pioneers an original way to a mature judgement by tackling the three basic questions that the debate raises What is it that makes human life valuable Can it ever be moral to intend to kill someone And how much should we fear the wider social effects of legalising euthanasia or assisted suicide

Life's Worth Arthur J. Dyck, 2002 Today there is growing acceptance of the idea of physician assisted suicide Even Christians are beginning to factor the possibility into their ethical understandings Would it not be compassionate to acquiesce in a terminally ill patient's request to end it all This sentiment seems reasonable even humane But as Harvard ethicist Arthur J Dyck shows in this powerful work there are solid moral and practical bases for the existing laws against assisted suicide in the United States and elsewhere Over the course of four interconnected tightly reasoned arguments Dyck takes readers from a basic concern for human suffering the main focus of those who support assisted suicide to the deeper truths of life's inherent worth Dyck begins by examining the arguments of some physicians moral philosophers and theologians for making assisted suicide available He also discusses the alternative practice of comfort only care explaining why it differs morally from assisted suicide and euthanasia Dyck then explores and defends the moral structure underlying the West's long tradition of homicide law as well as current law against assisted suicide and euthanasia laws designed to protect both freedom and human life Finally Dyck shows that the moral structure undergirding our system of law is compatible with the views of Christianity and he points to certain Christian beliefs that provide comfort and hope to those who are suffering dying or experiencing the death of loved ones Throughout the book Dyck staunchly maintains that assisted suicide is unacceptable in any and all circumstances The practice denies terminally ill patients the possibility of recovery and robs them of the chance to rethink the meaning of their lives or to achieve spiritual growth Furthermore because it undermines the shared moral structure that makes community possible assisted suicide bodes ill for society as a whole Life s Worth is a must read for anyone grappling with this hotly debated issue

Encyclopedia of Christianity John Bowden,2005 Presents a collection of alphabetically arranged articles related to Christianity covering its history events and important figures and individuals Includes maps charts and illustrations
