Generating Theatre Meaning Eli Rozik, 2007-12-01 Offers a theory and methodology of performance analysis as an alternative to traditional play analysis This book carries an underlying theme that theatre performance is a descriptive text generated by the theatre medium and that the process of generating meaning takes place in the actual encounter between a theatre performance and the spectator

Inter-Art Journey Nurit Yaari, 2015-04-01 In recent years inter medial studies have attracted increasing attention in arts theory The notion of inter mediality presupposes that each established art such as theatre painting and cinema indicates the existence of a particular medium which preserves its distinct features in translations from art to art and especially in its combinations with others in single works Nonetheless this field of research is presupposed already in the traditional studies of ekphrasis which focus on the verbal accounts of nonverbal works of art and in Wagner's notion of Gesamtkunstwerk This renewed interest generated new fields of research such as a the likelihood of the arts reflecting common grounds b the necessity of a shared metalanguage b the possibility of inter medial translation and d the inter medial coexistence within a single work of art without hindering the reading interpreting and experiencing abilities of receivers In honor of Eli Rozik Ph D professor emeritus former head of the Department of Theatre Studies and Dean of the Faculty of Arts Tel Aviv University this collection provides overviews of all these theoretical issues and tackles the contemporary practical questions that arise from attempts to transgress the boundaries between the established disciplines of arts studies Considering first the theoretical aspects of inter art inter mediality and nonverbal literacy Exploring the Common Grounds of the Arts goes on to discuss by means of performance analysis dialogues between the arts within a single work and correspondences between visual and auditory stimuli in musical contexts It concludes with a discussion of practical examples of inter mediality in religious representations official processions and public performances

Rozik,2011-08-24 While assimilating theoretical insights from Aristotle to this day this title contests inter alia the theory of comedy's ritual origin challenges the age old and continuing attempts to determine the structure of action that characterises comedy and suggests instead that structures of action are shared by all genres Performances of Ancient Jewish

Letters Marvin Lloyd Miller,2015-09-16 This ambitious and engaging book sets itself the task of combining a wide range of approaches to cast new light on the form and function of several ancient Jewish letters in a variety of languages The focus of The Performance of Ancient Jewish Letters is on applying a new emerging field of performance theory to texts and arguing that letters and other documents were not just read in silence as is normal today but were performed especially when they were addressed to a community A distinctive feature of this book consists of being one of the first to apply the approach of performance criticism to ancient Jewish letters Previous treatments of ancient letters have not given enough consideration to their oral context however this book prompts the reader to listen sympathetically with the audience The Performance focuses close attention on the ways in which the engagement of the audience during the performance of a text might be read from traces present in the text itself This book invites the audience to hear a fresh reading of a family letter from Hermopolis concerning ugly tunics and castor oil festival letters about issues surrounding the celebration of Passover Purim and Hanukkah a diaspora letter on how to live in a foreign land and also an official letter concerning the building of the Jerusalem temple These letters will help us understand a text from the Dead Sea Scrolls namely MMT Marvin L Miller argues for the centrality of performance in the life of Jews of the Second Temple period an area of study that has been traditionally neglected The Performance advances the fields of orality and epistolography and supplements other scholars works in those fields

Metaphoric Thinking Eli Rozik, 2008 A Study of Nonverbal Metaphor in the Arts and Its Archaic Roots Gestos, 2013

Choice, 2008 2008, 中国-日本 国际 交流 基金会 出版 中国 国际 交流 基金会 Fictional Thinking Eli Rozik, 2009 This book offers a theory of the archaic mode of fictional thinking and a methodology for the analysis of fictional worlds It presupposes the mutual independence of the description of a fictional world in any language or medium and the described fictional world Such a world is generated by an autonomous fictional structure which reflects the spontaneous expectations of the spectator and thematic specification A model of this structure is presented comprising seven layers personified mythical praxical naive ironic and aesthetic and overriding these layers the structure of the fictional experience on the level of relationship between the fictional world and spectator This experience depends on the spectator's ability to complement such a description with pertinent associations drawn from shared cultural resources and psychical mechanisms of response

Explanations and examples are couched in poetic pragmatic aesthetic and rhetoric methodologies An Introduction surveys the major contributions made to a methodology of fictional analysis since Aristotle's Poetics problematizes them and suggests possible alternatives Part I is devoted to the inner structure of fictional worlds i.e. to the poetic rules that generate them The innovation of this approach lies in its multi-layered nature Part II deals with the structure of the fictional experience which is metaphoric and rhetoric in nature Part III deals with the specific structures of fictional worlds that reflect the particular intentions and purposes of their authors Part IV contains analyses of actual fictional worlds that illustrate the application of the previously presented principles The focus throughout is on theatre fictional worlds which by their nature exhibit the most complex fictional thoughts that the human brain can generate The theoretical insights gained for theatre assumedly apply to descriptions of such worlds in any language or medium More than a hundred fictional worlds created during 2 500 years of theatre recorded history are analyzed The volume has been purposefully designed to address undergraduate and postgraduate student needs to provide a fundamental competence of theatre studies

Future Theatre Research Eli Rozik, 2016-01-01 Eli Rozik explores the principles that generated the theatre medium and its possible roots in the preverbal imagistic mode of thinking This mode characterises the remnants of preverbal thinking such as unconscious thinking dreaming the embryonic speech of toddlers and their imaginative play and drawings prior to mastering verbal thinking The book is a recapitulation of major findings regarding the nature of the theatre its medium fictional creativity and origin and includes new unpublished studies It addresses the principles of imagistic metaphoric symbolic and fictional thinking which characterise the theatre as well as reception and acting The work has been designed to fit the structure of a university course and will appeal to people interested in broadening their knowledge and understanding of theatre art

Theatre Sciences Eli Rozik, 2014 Traditional theatre semiotics promoted a scientific approach to theatre studies albeit viewing semiotics as the unique discipline of research Theatre Sciences A Plea for a Multidisciplinary Approach to Theatre Studies suggests instead a multi-disciplinary approach including the following theoretical disciplines narratology mythology pragmatics ethics theatre irony theory of genres aesthetics semiotics theory of nonverbal figures of speech rhetoric psychoanalysis reception theory history and sociology with semiotics being only one among equals These disciplines are presented from the perspective of their possible contributions to a sound methodology of theatre texts analysis Traditional theatre semiotics moreover holds the view that the actual performance on stage is the genuine text of theatre instead of the play script Despite this paradigmatic shift however this viewpoint has failed to produce commendable analyses of such texts The alternative presupposition put forward in this volume entails a series of novel perceptions of the theatre text and its possible impact on the experiencing spectator whose role in reading interpreting and experiencing the theatre text is not less crucial than that of the text itself This view presupposes that the theatre text is a description of a fictional world generated by the theatre medium The author also contests the age-old view that a theatre fictional text reflects a simple narrative structure and suggests instead a complexity that consists of seven layers personified mythical praxical naïve ironic modal and aesthetic with each one of them re structuring the previous layer Prof Rozik also presents and describes a semiotic layer that lends communicative capacity to the description of a fictional world and two additional metaphoric and rhetoric layers which structure the theatre experience The underlying purpose is to illustrate the application of the aforementioned disciplines to these fictional layers and eventually their joint application to entire theatre fictional texts Organization of the book reflects the structure of a university course

Understanding Theatre Jacqueline Martin, Willmar Sauter, 1995 Index to Theses with Abstracts Accepted for Higher Degrees by the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland and the Council for National Academic Awards , 2008 Current Index to Journals in Education , 1984 Comedy Eli

Rozik, 2011 This book is an original approach to the study of comedy While assimilating theoretical insights from Aristotle to the present day the book contests inter alia the theory of comedy's ritual origin It challenges the age old and continuing attempts to determine the structure of action that characterizes comedy suggesting instead that structures of action are shared by all genres and that it is the specific mood that accounts for their differences Mood is a prism through which a playwright wishes the spectator to perceive a fictional world Comedy is characterized by its lighthearted mood which generates a specific kind of laughter If mood determines the genre of a fictional world in contrast to current theory comedy satiric drama and grotesque drama are different genres promoting different moods and aiming at different effects Each genre should thus be read and experienced according to its inherent rules and not in terms of a theory that lumps these genres together Comedy A Critical Introduction discusses the pivotal role of commedia dell'arte in both reflecting comedy's classical tradition and influencing subsequent developments especially in comedy's style of acting It explores the relations between comedy and carnival and between comedy and joke telling It also probes the view that comedy is characterized by a unique vision and examines comedy in different media such as cinema comics puppet theatre radio drama and TV drama The book questions the traditional semiotic view that all meaning is in the text and suggests that in generating comedic meaning the spectator's contribution reaction is no less vital than that of the text itself Major contributions to a general theory of comedy and to a sound methodology for the analysis of comedies are presented Ample references to comedies and or pertinent analyses of such comedies written over the course of 2 500 years of theatre recorded history are provided enabling readers to grasp ideas in their original terminology and logic Each presentation is accompanied by critical comments which both introduce the problems involved and suggest possible solutions
